1. Executive Summary

The Indian agricultural sector is driven by smallholder farmers, who own more than 85% of the landholdings and contribute 51% of the country's production. Climate change, natural disasters and soil degradation have added to the economic aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic to create a challenging environment for agriculture. Indian farms are expected to support the food security of more than 1.5 billion people by 2030. This situation calls for a complete transformation of India's agricultural sector.

The convergence of responsible cropping practices along with artificial intelligence and emerging technologies with agriculture provides a brilliant opportunity for India to make its agriculture more agile, data-driven and efficient, while continuing to focus on farmers' well-being, uplifting rural households' standard of living, feeding the population and aligning agriculture to face the climate challenge.

2. Introduction

Globally, 2 billion people depend on 500 million small farms for their livelihoods.

India's marginal and small farmers (who own less than two hectares of land) possess 86% of land holdings, covering 47.3% of the total cultivable area and contributing to 51% of the country's agricultural produce. With every passing generation, land holdings have fragmented further.

These smallholders struggle to capture much of the value of their products, which typically travels through numerous intermediaries with whom farmers negotiate from a position of disadvantage due to their lack of access to markets, pricing and grading information and services. Farmers receive as little as 25% of the final selling price of their crop, throttling productive investment and slowing the transition from subsistence to market-oriented farming.

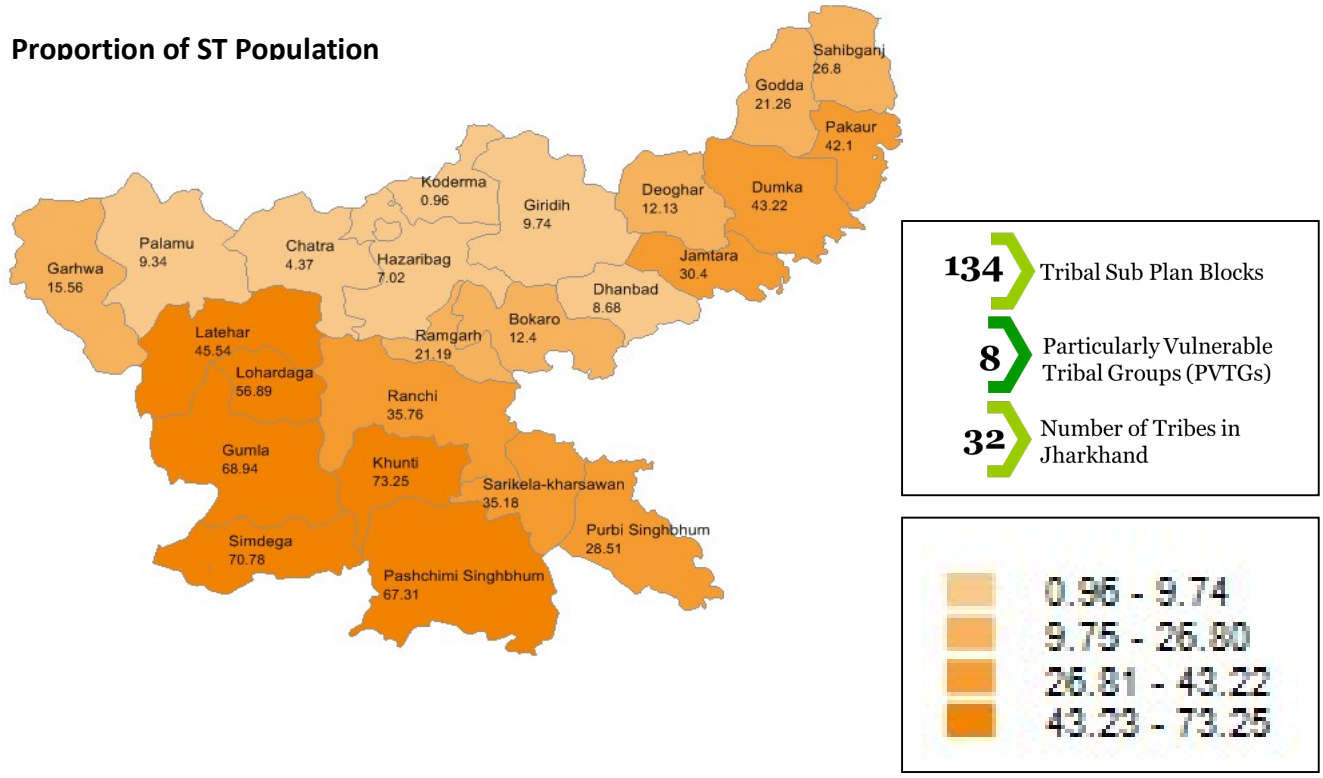

Farmers' limited access to modern machinery, logistics and analytical data – such as on soil composition and climate patterns – leaves them at a disadvantage. Added to that is the worsening fallout of climate change in a sector already prone to the worst effects of adverse weather and natural processes such as soil degradation and pest attacks. The Indian Council of Agricultural Research predicts that climatic changes could reduce irrigated rice yields by 7% by 2050.

While facing these critical systemic challenges, Indian agriculture is expected to continue producing more food – enough to feed an estimated 1.5 billion people by 2030. In this situation, the welfare of farmers, especially smallholder farmers, and improvement in farm income are essential to ensure that agriculture provides a viable livelihood for existing and coming generations. Yet, rising input costs and low returns from farming, as well as increasing wages in the non-farm sectors, have caused investment in agriculture to shrink even as young people become reluctant to take up farming. Meanwhile, increasingly erratic and unpredictable rainfall is compounding farming risk.

Around 80% of rural population of Jharkhand is directly or indirectly dependent on agriculture. The agricultural economy of the Jharkhand state is characterized by dependence on nature, low investment, low productivity, mono-cropping with paddy as the dominant crop, in inadequate irrigation facilities and small and marginal holdings. The dependence of agriculture on the vagaries of the rain-God can be gauged from the fact that as much as 90% of the total cultivated area is un-irrigated. Primarily a rain dependent state, Jharkhand is witnessing deficient rainfall for the past few years now and even its relatively well-off farmers are becoming daily-wage workers or force to take up other livelihood source.

The period of rain is restricted to only four months in a year, June to September, when monsoon arrives. The remaining eight months are dry. There is some rainfall during the months of December and January in some parts of the state. Even during monsoon, the rainfall is scanty and undependable in many parts of the country. Sometimes the monsoon delayed considerably while sometimes they cease prematurely. Due to lack of different water conservation structure at village level, many a times, in spite of good rainfall the situation become worsen for the farmers to get a good agriculture return. This pushes large areas of the state into low production in agriculture and facilitates them to migrate and leads to remittance-based economy. With the help of different water conservation structure like staggered trenching, bunding, plantation, small water harvesting structure at the suitable location etc. to conserve the water as well as irrigation infrastructure for better utilization of water during the time of water scarcity can effectively enhance the food security as well as cash income for the rural mass.

Therefore, water conservation as well as use of the conserved water through irrigation helps in stabilizing the output and yield levels. It also plays a protective role during drought years. Since, both income and employment are positively and closely related to output, prevention of fall in output during drought is an important instrument for achieving stability of income and employment in the state.

Irrigation confers indirect benefits through increased agricultural production. Employment potential of irrigated lands, increase production etc. is improving income of government from agriculture. Availability of regular water supply will increase the income of farmers imparting a sense of security and stability in agriculture.

5. Jharkhand: General features of the population with focus on Scheduled Tribes

The State of Jharkhand was formed by carving out the Chhotanagpur, Santal Pargana and Hazaribagh Divisions of undivided Bihar in November, 2000. It has a geographical area of 79,714 sq km and a population of 26.95 million (Census 2001), 26% of whom are Scheduled Tribes and 12% Scheduled Castes. Jharkhand is also mostly rural, with 78% of the State's population in villages. Salient demographic features of the State are enclosed as Annexure 1.

About 3.8 m ha or 48% of the State's geographical area is cultivable. However, the net sown area is only 1.8 m ha1 or about 23% (all India 47%) of the geographical area and more than half of the cultivable land remains fallow. Per capita net sown area is about 0.067 ha (all India 0.15 ha). Only 0.16 m ha or about 8% of the net sown area is irrigated from all available sources. About 30% (2.33 m ha) of the geographical area is classified as forests. About 70% of the farms are smaller than 1 ha in size and another 15% 1 to 2 ha (with an average of about 1.2 ha). Only about 2.5% of the farms are larger than 10 ha.

The State has a sub-humid climate with average annual rainfall of 1,300 mm[2]. However, due to high variability of monsoon rains, low moisture holding capacity of soils, absence of developed aquifers due to the hard rock substrate and high run-off due to the undulating terrain, agriculture is fraught with high risks[3]. Even in years of "normal monsoons" with overall rainfall around the long-term average, farmers are often faced with the spectre of total crop failure due to long dry spells at critical junctures in the crop cycle during the wet season when almost 90% of the crops are cultivated.

Social profile, livelihoods and property relations:

On the basis of the social profile of the people, the broad pattern of livelihoods and property relations, Jharkhand can be divided into three distinct regions. The northern, northwestern and central districts of Garhwa, Palamu, Chatra, Koderma, Giridih, Hazaribag, Deoghar, Bokaro and Dhanbad represent the transition zone between the south Bihar plains and the Chhotanagpur plateau. The population of Scheduled Tribes in these districts is significantly less than the State average and that of Scheduled Castes proportionately

[1]Government of India, Planning Commission, Agro-climatic Regional Planning Unit (ARPU), Working Paper No. 10, August, 1998, page 28.

[2] Except in parts of Palamu division where rainfall is in the range of 800-1,000 mm.

[3] As per the categorisation by Indian Meteorological Department, Jharkhand figures in the "drought corridor" of the country, which also includes Rajasthan, Gujarat, Andhra Pradesh (drought prone districts of Rayalaseema and Telengana regions), West Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh (including Chhattisgarh), Bihar and parts of West Bengal adjoining Jharkhand.

more. Land distribution is highly skewed in favour of the upper castes. Many Scheduled Caste families, such as *Bhuyian*s do not even have homestead lands of their own. Agriculture is the main source of livelihoods for landowners. The landless subsist as agricultural workers locally or migrate in search of work to all parts of the country. In certain pockets, coal mining is a source of livelihood for the landless. The north-eastern districts of Dumka, Godda, Sahebganj and Jamtara are "agglomerates", a large number of predominantly Scheduled Tribe villages interspersed with a few predominantly non-tribal villages (Latehar in the west and Saraikela in the south have similar composition). The non-tribal communities represent incursions by the settled agrarians from the northern plains (and in the south from Orissa). Though agriculture is the main livelihood source, dependence on forests is significant, especially for Scheduled Tribes. Shifting cultivation is practiced widely in parts of the Rajmahal hills in the northeast. Migration to neighboring West Bengal and to the tea gardens in the northeast supplements' livelihoods. Southern and southwestern Jharkhand comprising of East and West Singhbhum, Ranchi, Lohardaga, Simdega and Gumla have a uniformly high proportion of Scheduled Tribes (more than 50%), especially in rural areas (Pakur in the northeast has a similar composition). Land distribution is fairly even and landlessness insignificant. Agriculture is the main source of livelihoods, supplemented by collection and trade of firewood and other non-wood forest products, and seasonal migration.

Farming systems and rural livelihoods in Jharkhand:

Rice/paddy, the principal crop of the State sown over 1.3 m ha in 1994-95[4] had an average yield of only 1 ton/ha[5]. Maize, minor millets and pulses are the other principal crops and together occupy about 25% of the net sown area, with similar low yields. Oilseed production is very less. Horticulture and floriculture are yet to pick up in the State While the entire State has an undulating and hilly terrain, there are local differences in topography and it is convenient to classify the landscape as upper-, middle- and lower watersheds. The level of development in agriculture and the overall pattern of livelihoods vary with local topography and distance from urban centers. Forests were the principal source of livelihoods until recently in the upper watersheds that have steeper slopes and are almost entirely populated by the Scheduled Tribes. Each household here would own some homestead land, often as much as a tenth of an acre or more, used to cultivate maize, finger millets, beans and some tuber crops. Traditional varieties of broadcast rainfed paddy (godadhaan) would be cultivated in the upper and middle portions of the cultivated land.

[4]Planning Commission, ibid.

[5] The average yield for India during the year was 1.9 ton/ha, with Tamil Nadu having the highest average yield at 3.2 ton/ha. Yields vary a great deal within Jharkhand due to the undulating topography and varying levels of development of agriculture.

Productivity here is abysmally low and risk of crop failure very high. The narrow valley portions are used to cultivate traditional varieties of transplanted paddy, with low but fairly reliable yields. Modern seed varieties, chemical fertilizers, irrigation and farm machinery are yet to enter these places. Agriculture is entirely for subsistence. Cattle are reared for draft power and manure. A few hens and pigs that scavenge the homesteads serve as buffers. Forest produce, various beans and wage income are sources of cash. Migration increasingly is taking the place of gathering in the livelihood basket.

The middle watersheds with gentler slopes occupy the largest area of Jharkhand. Scheduled Tribes, in majority here, have been settled agriculturists longer in these parts compared to their counterparts in the upper watersheds. However, farming practices remain rudimentary. Chemical fertilizers and improved seeds are used on a limited scale by the more entrepreneurial and less food-insecure. Vegetables and tubers are cultivated on a small scale in the homestead besides maize and millets. Goda dhaan,millets, pulses and oilseeds are the upland and midland crops. Transplanted paddy is cultivated in the low lands. The valleys are broader. Paddy yield averages from 0.5 ton/ha in the upland to about 1.5 ton/ha in the valleys. Even short spells of rain failure can significantly reduce crop yields in the uplands and midlands. Open wells capable of irrigating about a tenth to half an acre are now fairly widespread, because of various government schemes, though mainly the non-tribal farmers make good use of these. Land and water management practices, are more evolved than in the upper watersheds. The practice of open grazing after paddy is harvested inhibits winter cultivation even where irrigation is available. Cattle are reared primarily for manure and draft power. Pigs, goats, poultry and a few fruit trees (jackfruit and tamarind) constitute the household economic buffer.

Farming systems in the lower watersheds, comprising gentle slopes and wider valleys, have been influenced to some extent by the green revolution-led advances in agriculture. Small pockets of economic vibrancy have developed near cities and towns. Markets and market routes have been established. Though the Scheduled Tribes are in a minority here, they too have adopted better agricultural practices compared to their counterparts elsewhere. Double cropping, year-round vegetable cultivation and small pockets of sugarcane can be seen in such areas. Cultivated land is managed fairly well in the valleys though water resources have not been harnessed adequately and yields remain below potential. Uplands and forests are poorly managed. Tractors can occasionally be seen in use for ploughing and agricultural transport. Dairy, mainly among non-tribal people, supplements agriculture.

Historically, public interventions by way of capital investment, research and extension to improve agriculture in India have largely been guided by concerns of aggregate food sufficiency and have focused on the irrigated plains and deltas, considered high potential areas. In case of undivided Bihar, itself far behind other States even in terms of agricultural development, the high potential areas were the northern plains. As the "low potential" part of one of agriculturally the least developed States, Jharkhand thus suffered doubly in terms of policy attention to agriculture. As markets typically follow demand, channels for supply of implements and inputs are virtually non-existent due to absence of demand, and further constrain development of the sector.

Subsidiary farm-based activities like dairy, poultry, etc. generally follow growth and development in agriculture. These have not developed in the State in spite of increasing demand for the products. The State has a large population of scrub cattle, kept principally for draft power and manure. However, due to the practice of free grazing and non-descript breeds of cattle, their contribution to agriculture by way of manure is limited in spite of a large population. This would in the long run hamper intensification of agriculture given the low fertility of soils.

Forests continue to be an important supplemental source of livelihoods for the Scheduled Tribes. Tasar silk and shellac rearing, collection and trade of firewood and a variety of fruits, nuts and leaves are the sources of cash and non-cash income from forests. Jharkhand produces about 60% of the country's raw tropical tasar silk and 56% of its shellac. Declining forests, low capital investment, low levels of technology and a trade chain unfavourable to primary producers are marginalizing this once important source of livelihoods for the Scheduled Tribes.

Low productivity of agriculture, one-dimensional nature of the farm economy and lack of development in non-farm livelihood sectors make food security[6] and subsistence the primary concern of farmers in general and tribals in particular.

6. Jharkhand Tribal development Society (JTDS) at a glance

Jharkhand Tribal Development Society (JTDS) was established with the objective of improving the living conditions of tribal people in general and PVTGs in particular. This is sought to be achieved by "organising and enabling the communities to adopt sustainable and productive natural resource management regimes, adopt market-oriented production systems and learn the skills and gain the experience of planning and implementing development plans relevant to their villages".

JTDS was established on 2002 as a society under Dept. of Welfare, Govt. of Jharkhand. Since its inception it is continuously working for the betterment of Tribal people of Jharkhand. It

[6] Food security exists when all people, at all times, have physical and economic access to sufficient, safe and nutritious food to meet their dietary needs and food preferences for an active and healthy life. (NC Saxena, Report on the Food Assistance Programme in India, Planning Commission, 2002)

has successfully implemented the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) funded Jharkhand Tribal Development Programme (JTDP). After completion of the JTDP, IFAD again funded for another project called Jharkhand Tribal Empowerment and Livelihood Project (JTELP), which started in October 2013 and will be completed by December 2021. Under JTELP, JTDS has worked with 2.11 lakhs households in 1779 villages of 32 blocks spread across 14 districts of Jharkhand.

13. Vermicompost and its usage

Vermiculture means artificial rearing or cultivation of worms (Earthworms) and the technology is the scientific process of using them for the betterment of human beings. Vermicompost is the excreta of earthworm, which is rich in humus. Earthworms eat cow dung or farm yard manure along with other farm wastes and pass it through their body and in the process convert it into vermicompost. The municipal wastes; non-toxic solid and liquid waste of the industries and household garbage's can also be converted into vermicompost in the same manner. Earthworms not only convert garbage into valuable manure but keep the environment healthy. Conversion of garbage by earthworms into compost and the multiplication of earthworms are simple process and can be easily handled by the farmers.

Vermicompost is nothing but the excreta of earthworms, which is rich in humus and nutrients. We can rear earthworms artificially in a brick tank or near the stem / trunk of trees (especially horticultural trees). By feeding these earthworms with biomass and watching properly the food (bio-mass) of earthworms, we can produce the required quantities of vermin-compost.

Advantages of vermin-compost:

1. Vermicompost is rich in all essential plant nutrients.
2. Provides excellent effect on overall plant growth encourages the growth of new shoots / leaves and improves the quality and shelf life of the produce.
3. Vermicompost is free flowing, easy to apply, handle and store and does not have bad odour.
4. It improves soil structure, texture, aeration, and waterholding capacity and prevents soil erosion.
5. Vermicompost is rich in beneficial micro flora such as a fixers, P- solubilizers, cellulose decomposing micro-flora etc in addition to improve soil environment.
6. Vermicompost contains earthworm cocoons and increases the population and activity of earthworm in the soil.
7. It neutralizes the soil protection.
8. It prevents nutrient losses and increases the use efficiency of chemical fertilizers.
9. Vermicompost is free from pathogens, toxic elements, weed seeds etc.
10. Vermicompost minimizes the incidence of pest and diseases.
11. It enhances the decomposition of organic matter in soil.
12. It contains valuable vitamins, enzymes and hormones like auxins, gibberellins etc.

Nutrient content of vermin compost

Nitrogen- 1.5 – 2.5 %
Calcium- 0.5 – 1.0 %
Phosphorus- 0.9 – 1.7 %
Magnessium- 0.2 – 0.3 %
Potash- 1.5 – 2.4 %
Sulphur- 0.4 - 0.5 %
And other micronutrients with vitamins, enzymes and hormones.

Materials for preparation of Vermicompost:

Any types of biodegradable wastes like;

1. Crop residues
2. Weed biomass
3. Vegetable waste
4. Leaf litter
5. Hotel refuse
6. Waste from agro-industries
7. Biodegradable portion of urban and rural wastes.

Methods of preparation

1. The vermin-compost can be prepared in concrete tank. The size of the tank should be 10 ft. length or more depending upon the availability of land and raw materials, breadth 3- 5ft and height 3 ft. Suitable plastic tube / basin structure may also be needed. The floor of the tank should be connected with stones and pieces of bricks.

2. The available bio-wastes are to be collected and are to be heaped under sun about 7-10 days and be chopped if necessary.

3. Sprinkling of cow dung slurry to the heap may be done.

4. A thin layer of half decomposed cow dung (1-2 inches) is to be placed at the bottom.

5. Place the chopped weed biomass and partially decomposed cow dung layer wise (10-20 cm) in the tank / pot upto the depth of 2 ½ ft. The bio waste and cow dung ratio should be 60: 40 on dry wt. Basis.

6. Release about 2-3 kg earthworms per ton of biomass or 100 nos. earthworms per one sq. ft. area.
Efficient species: Eisenia foetida Amyanthes diffrigens Eudrillus engineac.

7. Place wire net / bamboo net over the tank to protect earthworm from birds.

8. Sprinkling of water should be done to maintain 70-80 % moisture content.

9. Provision of a shed over the compost is essential to prevent entry of rainwater and direct sunshine.

10. Sprinkling of water should be stopped when 90 % bio-wastes are decomposed. Maturity could be judged visually by observing the formation of granular structure of the compost at the surface of the tank.

11. Harvest the vermin-compost by scrapping layer wise from the top of the tank and heap under shed. This will help in separation of earthworms from the compost. Sieving may also be done to separate the earthworms and cocoons.

Vermi wash- a plant growth regulator:

Vermi wash is a liquid plant growth regulator, which contains high amount of enzymes, vitamins and hormones like auxins, gibberellins etc along with macro and micronutrients used as foliar spray.

Methods of preparation

1. Take one big bucket and one mug.
2. Set up one stop cork on the lower most part of the bucket.
3. Put a layer of broken bricks, pieces of stones having thickness of 10-15 cm in the bucket.
4. Over this layer put another layer of sand having thickness of 10-15 cm.
5. Then put a layer of partially decomposed cow dung having 30-45 cm thickness over it.
6. Then put another layer of soil having 2-3 thicknesses.
7. Now open the stopcock of the bucket and when the materials taken in the bucket.
8. Then put 100-200 nos. of earthworms in the bucket.
9. After that, a layer of paddy straw having 6 cm thickness is given.
10. Now open the stopcock of the bucket and spray water regularly for a period of 7-8 days.
11. After 10 days the liquid vermin wash will be produced in the bucket.
12. Hang one pot with a bottom hole over the bucket in such a way so that water falls drop by drop.
13. Every day 4-5 litres of water is to be poured in the hanging pot.
14. Keep another pot under stop cork to collect the vermin wash. Every day 3-4 litres vermin wash can be collected.

Application

1. Mix 1 litres of vermin wash with 7-10 litres of water and spray the solution in the leaf (upper and lower side) in the evening at the growing the crop.

2. Mix 1 litre of vermin wash with 1 litre of cow urine and then add 10 litres of water to the vermin urine solution and mixed thoroughly and keep it over night before spraying 50-60 litre of such solution and to be sprayed in one bigha of land to control various crop diseases.

Bio-fertilizers and their utilization:

Bio fertilizers are microbial inoculants consisting of living cells of micro-organism like bacteria, algae and fungi alone or combination which may help in increasing crop productivity by way of helping in the biological nitrogen fixation, solubilization of insoluble phosphorus fertilizer materials, stimulating growth or in decomposition of plant residues.

Advantages of using Bio-fertilizer

• Can replace 20 to 50 % of chemical fertilizer 'N' and 15 – 25 % of phosphatic fertilizers.
• Bio-fertilizers being cheap, provide highly cost effective supplement of chemical fertilizers.
• Increase farm productivity, generally 10-40 % in grain yield and 15 – 30 % in vegetable growth.
• Activates soil biologically thereby increasing natural fertility of soil, which causes sustainable agriculture.
• Help in stimulating plant growth in general and roots in particular as they serve various growth promoting hormones like auxin, gibberellins etc and vitamins. They help in better nutrient uptake and increase tolerance towards drought and moisture stress.
Secrete some fungi static and antibiotic like substances, which reduce the incidence of various soil borne diseases. It has got antagonistic behaviour against pathogens.
• They help to proliferate and survival of other beneficial microorganisms in soil.
